THE CITY COUNCIL MEETS

Special Session Called by Mayor to Pass Claims and to Consider Questions Relating to the Interests of the City.

LARRABEE AND ANDERSON TAKEN

Pursuant to a call issued by Mayor Hays the city council met Tuesday night in special session. The chief business of the evening was the passage of the claim ordinance which had come over from the meeting of November 9, when no business was transacted because no quorum was present. All the city fathers except Councilman Ricketts being in their places, Mr. Ricketts being detained at home by sickness.

The gas franchise was to be discussed, but the committee stated that it was not ready to report, and the matter went over to the next meeting.

The matter of placing tile in the small stream that crosses the Peregrin lot just south of Walnut Street between Taylor Avenue and Locust Street was also called up, but the committee asked for more time to think the matter over and it also was put down for action next week.

The residents in that neighborhood complain of an offensive odor, and are unanimous in demanding the tilling.

The question of extending the water main on West Liberty Street and placing a fire plug there was reported on by the committee. The committee, consisting of councilmen Young and Mahan stated that they believed no fire plug necessary, but added that the private citizens residing on the street were entitled to water under the terms of the franchise under which the Water Works Company acts, and that the mains should be laid for that purpose.

The question of accepting the walks recently constructed on Anderson, Larabee and Hanna Streets was next taken up. On motion of the committee the walks and gutters on Larabee and Anderson Streets were formally accepted and the contractor Dillard Artice, is to receive the balance due him on both streets. The Hanna Street improvements were held up until next meeting, that some minor details may be straightened out. The work on that street will then be accepted.

OSCAR DORSETT ACQUITTED

ARE TWO CASES YET TO TRY

At near nine o'clock Tuesday night the jury in the case of Oscar O. Dorsett charged with illegal voting in the Township of Cloverdale, reached a decision, and found the defendant not guilty. The verdict was practically what was expected. The law of Indiana in regard to voting is, so vague and depends so much on facts that can be proved as upon intent which is largely a matter of a man thinking and not to be proved one way or the other, that Mr. Dorsett was quite within his rights under the law. And since he voted with good intent and has an interest in the community he is quite within all right.

The case went to the jury shortly before supper on Tuesday, and the jury was not long in reaching a conclusion. It is to be noted, too, that ten of the twelve jurors were Democrats, which shows that no partisan feeling entered into the case. Two other cases are yet to try and it is not yet known whether they will be punished or not.

TAGGART NOT A CANDIDATE

He Will Not be in the Race for United States Senator—The Sentiment of the Democratic Party is Almost A Unit in Support of John W. Kern.

OPPOSITION WITHOUT MUCH HOPE

Hon. Thomas Taggart has formally announced that he is not a candidate for senator, and as a consequence the friends of John W. Kern are jubilant, as they took Mr. Taggart's announcement to mean that Taggart and his followers will support Kern. Taggart's support of Kern, they say, practically assures his election, as Taggart has considerable influence with the members of the legislature.

Mr. Taggart's decision followed a conference he had with Mr. Kern yesterday in Mr. Kern's office. Mr. Taggart arrived in Indianapolis from French Lick and stopped at Kern's office on his way to the Denison Hotel. Mr. Taggart and Mr. Kern had a long talk behind closed doors.

In his statement to the press Mr. Taggart expresses deep gratitude for the support his friends have offered him, but says he will be better satisfied to remain in the ranks and assist the Democratic organization.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

Refuses to Pay an Old Policy And Pleads Statute of Limitations—Case in Court at Bloomington.

An interesting case is pending in the Monroe Circuit Court. It is a suit brought by Mrs. Elizabeth King against the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, to compel the payment of a $10,000 policy, held by her husband, S. T. Buckner, who left in 1867 and has never been heard from. Mrs. King never knew of the existence of the policy until three years ago, when the insurance company, in looking over their books and finding that no disposition had ever been made of the policy, began to make inquiry with the intention of taking it off their books.

Mrs. King was the wife of S. T. Buckner in 1867. In that year, in company with his brother-in-law, W. H. Baker, he left for New Orleans with a shipment of horses and mules. Buckner obtained the sum of $6,200 from the First National Bank of this city to use in buying the stock. He and Baker never returned and have never been heard from since, and consequently the bank lost the money. During the trial, two letters that were written by Buckner to his wife after their arrival in New Orleans, were read. In one of them he stated that several men had been killed in New Orleans about that time, but that he and Baker had no fear. As they never came home and nothing has since been learned of them, their friends think they were killed.

Believing that her husband was dead, Mrs. Buckner married King. His death came several years later. In her complaint Mrs. King alleges that her first husband is dead, that she is the beneficiary of the policy and should be paid the money. The company refused to pay, claiming that the statute of limitations is a bar to payment.

BATTLE FOR THE SPOILS

True to the Traditions of the Republican Party, the Managers of the G. O. R. P. Machine at Indianapolis, Will Attempt to Control the Distribution of Official Pie That Equitably Belongs to the Governor Elect.

OLD LAW BROUGHT TO LIGHT

Some of the Republican leaders have dug up an old law which they believe will empower a commission composed of the State Auditor, the Secretary of State and the Governor to appoint the State House custodian and the State House engineer. With a Republican Secretary of State and a Republican State Auditor the appointment of Republicans to the positions named would be assured.

The Republicans contend that this course may be followed under a law passed in 1895. In 1889, when the Governor was a Republican and the Legislature was Democratic, the Legislature passed a law giving the Legislature the power to appoint the custodian and the engineer. This law was held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

In 1895, when the Governor was a Democrat and the Legislature was Republican, a law was passed placing the appointments in the hands of the commission composed of the Secretary of State, the State Auditor and the Governor. Before the law was passed the appointments for that term had been made. In 1897, when James A. Mount, Republican, was elected Governor, the Legislature undertook to place the appointments again in the hands of the Governor. In its effort to amend the law, the Legislature, it is said, amended the old law of 1889, which had been repealed, and left the law of 1895, which created the commission, intact. In spite of this, however, the engineer and custodian ever since that time have been appointed by the Governor.

Samuel C. Shutt has been engineer at the State House for several years. He says he has always been appointed by the Governor. Otway Baker is at present custodian. Both the engineer and the custodian have large forces of assistants.

IS SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Case of Charles F. Pegg Against the Estate of Mary J. Allen, Deceased, Is Compromised After the Jury is Ready to Hear the Proceedings.

This morning, after the jury was in place, the witnesses present and all the preparations for the trial complete, the case was compromised. It was to have been a hard-fought case, as there were many witnesses on both sides to be heard.

The compromise was made on the following basis. The plaintiff is allowed $200 on his claim. Attorneys fees of $75 are allowed on both sides of the case, and all the costs are to be paid by the estate.

The sudden ending of the case made the presence of the jury unnecessary and the jury were dismissed for the remainder of the week. They are to be present again Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

MOTORCYCLE SCARES HORSE

Horse Breaks Loose From Post and Runs Down the Sidewalk Demolishing the Attached Buggy and Scattering the Crowd.

ANIMAL ESCAPED ALL INJURY

An exciting runaway occurred on the north side of the square this morning about 11 o'clock, when a horse frightened at a motorcycle, and breaking from its fastenings ran down the sidewalk. Mr. Wallace had hitched to the telephone pole in front of the Hamilton Hardware store. The motorcycle came from the north and stopped in front of the horse. The animal reared, broke loose, and started directly for the cycle, which it barely missed. The horse then then started down the sidewalk in front of the Haspel meat market, leaving the buggy top in the cellar-way south of that building.

A number of buggies had been lined up along the outside of the walk by the Brothers livery stable. The running animal collided with the first of these and knocked over the whole row, and was finally stopped by Ab Hensley in front of the livery stable door. The vehicle attached to the horse was wrecked, but none of the over-turned buggies were injured except the first which had its wheels smashed. There was some tall scrambling for safety by men upon the walk at the time of the runaway.

FACTS AS TO LEGISLATORS

That are Not Known and Understood By the General Public, and Yet They Are Interesting and Should Be Widely Realized.

NEXT SESSION BEGINS JANUARY 7

Under the Indiana State constitution the number of senators in the general assembly can never exceed fifty, though it may be less (and the body now has the limit); while the house of representatives can never have more than 100, the present number.

The representatives are elected every two years, but one-half of the senators are elected every two years each to serve four years, so that there are always twenty-five "hold-over" senators, unless in the event of death or other reason for vacancies.

The districts from which senators and representatives may be elected can be changed once every six years, by the first subsequent legislature after the regular sexennial enumeration of male citizens of twenty-one years or more. If the first subsequent legislature does not redistrict the State, it may be done by any one subsequent assembly within the six year period.

Members of both Houses must be citizens of the United States for two years and preceding election and of the district one year. Senators must be at least twenty-five years of age and representatives twenty-one. No law suit can be started against a member between fifteen days before a session and fifteen days after adjournment.

ROSEBUD MINE CASES SET

Suits for More Than $100,000 Damages, Vented Here From Clay County, to be Tried November 27.

Probably one of the largest suits for damages ever tried in Putnam County will come up before the court on November 27. The several cases against the Vandalia Coal Company, who operate the Rosebud mine, located near Seelyville, will be tried here on that date. The cases grew out of an explosion in the company's mine in 1906, when two were killed and twenty injured. Damages to the extent of over $100,000 will be asked. The miners claim that the explosion was caused by dust in the mine, which the company failed to sprinkle according to law, and the company claims that the explosion was caused by gases.

Another case for damages which is on the docket for this term of court is the suit of Frances O. Jones against the Big Four Railroad. This case was brought to Putnam County on a change of venue from the Vigo Circuit Court and damages are asked to the extent of $100,000. The suit grows out of the Sanford explosion several months ago when a car of powder and dynamite exploded while standing at the side of a passenger train.

PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITY

A Pennsylvania Newspaper Calls Attention to the Possibility of Governor-Elect Thomas R. Marshall Being the Democratic Nominee for President in 1912.

HIS RECORD MAKES HIM STRONG

Under the heading, in the Philadelphia Record, is a communication signed T. R. M., which commenting on a previous communication from Lloyd T. Everett, of North Carolina, on Democratic leadership four years hence, says:

Mr. Bryan will continue to have great weight among the party leaders, but his friends would not permit him to make the sacrifice necessary to lead another campaign. History will find a place for Mr. Bryan, as it has found places for Henry Clay, Daniel Webster and other famous leaders.

To the State of Indiana there is an opportunity opened, and the Democrats of the country will watch the coming administration of Governor-elect Thomas R. Marshall. Yes, to him there is an opportunity, and if he is big enough to grasp it the party can look to the Hoosier State for a leader who in the past has not been conspicuous either as a radical or a conservative. Governor-elect Marshall has started out well by refunding the campaign contributions sent to him.

With a Democratic Governor, Democratic Legislature and Democratic United States Senator, Indiana is the rallying point of the Democratic party for the next four years.

POLICE COURT NOTES

James Sims and Thomas Sims were before the Mayor this morning charged with intoxication. James was fined $1 and costs and stayed his fine. Thomas was assessed $5 and costs, and having no way of liquidating went to jail.

The sack of money to be given away Saturday night in window of Ricketts' Jewelry Store gets larger each day. Its increase in amount and everybody is wondering how much it contains. You may get this money if you attend the moving picture show at the opera house Saturday night.

There is a growing feeling that the fish and game commission, in adhering to a law that makes it a crime to have a seine, even though it be for use on a private pond, and yet allows the great manufacturers of straw board and the Kingam Packing Company to poison all the fish in an entire river, is straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel. And there is wide-spread dissatisfaction with a law that gives irresponsible game wardens the right of search upon the premises of suspected parties. There may be something doing in the next legislature as a result of the conditions now existing.

If Mr. Taft should persist in following out the slight hint given in his recent speech, and should insist that the tariff be revised downward, what a blow that would be to the reviving confidence of Wall Street. It would be almost too much.

While these fine days are in evidence let the members of the city council not forget that sewage proposition. The city is interested and would like to hear that progress was being made.

It is to be noticed that the horse troughs still serve as drinking fountains for the unfortunates that desire a free drink when on the square.

Bad Symptoms.

The woman who has periodical headaches, backache, sees imaginary dark spots or specks floating or dancing before her eyes, has enervating or heavy fall feeling, stomach, faint spells, dragging-down feeling in lower abdominal or pelvic region, easily startled or excited, irregular or painful periods, with or without pelvic catarrh, is suffering from weakness and derangement of her system. No other ailment should be given city attention. Not all of above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

Neglected or badly treated and such cases often run into maladies which demand the surgeon's knife if they do not result fatally.

No medicine extant has such a long and numerous record of cures in such cases as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. No medicine has such a strong professional endorsement of each of its several ingredients as this one. A large number of eminent non-professional testimonials. The very best ingredients known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments enter into its composition. No alcohol, harmful, or habit-forming drug is to be found in the list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. In any condition of the female system, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can do only good—never harm. Its whole effect is to strengthen, invigorate and regulate the whole female system, and especially the pelvic organs. When these are deranged in function or affected by disease, the stomach and other organs of digestion become sympathetically deranged, the nerves are weakened, and a long list of bad, unpleasant symptoms follow. Too much must not be expected of this "Favorite Prescription." It will not perform miracles, will not cure anything, but it will often prevent them, if taken in time, and thus the operating table and the surgeon's knife may be avoided.

Women suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult by letter, free. All correspondence should be strictly private and carefully confidential. ## OBITUARY

A Bud Transplanted

Remember friends as you pass by As you are now, so once was I As I am now so you must be prepared For death and follow me.

On the afternoon of November 10, 1908 after several months of intense suffering the angel of death visited the home of William and Anna Boswell and snatched away Jacob Ayson, aged 22 years. How mysterious are the ways of Providence, that one so young, so amiable should be called away. It does indeed seem a mystery that he should go but God doeth all things well.

Jacob had been sick several months of consumption. All that the physicians and family could do was done but in vain. The bud was snatched from earth to bloom in heaven. All through his sickness he was never heard to murmur or complain. He leaves a father, mother, two brothers, four sisters and relatives and friends to mourn their loss. His brother and sister, having preceded him to the better world, he will be greatly missed at home. None but those who have given up their loved ones know how much he will be missed there. Everywhere you look you see something Jacob has done or touched.

His chair, his place at the table, there are so many things to remind us that the poor heart is bursting with grief and loneliness and it seems almost more than we can bear, but dear ones don't think of Jacob as dead, for he is not, he has only gone on before us to the better land. Think of him in heaven so happy and not a pain nor headache to make him sad. He is done with all that and the long, long days and nights of untold suffering are forgotten in his great joy and peace. Farewell dear brother, thou has left us to join the angels, but we will try to live as thou didst live and faithful that we may meet thee again. We must not feel that he is dead for we are taught that a human soul never dies. He is only waiting for us on that golden shore in that city of God.

The funeral services were conducted at the Dunkard Church at Clinton Falls on Wednesday at 2:30 o'clock, by Rev. Love and his body was carried by three of his brothers and three cousins, Carl Boswell, Clarence Boswell, John Hall, Earl Boswell, Joe Steggs, Oscar Boswell. The remains were laid to rest in the Dunkard cemetery to await the call of Him who says, "They are not dead but sleeping in the arms of Jesus."

Mary M. Smith.

Mary M. Smith, daughter of Reuben and Lehr Smith, was born in Cloverdale Township, August 11, 1861, and grew to womanhood in that vicinity. She was married to Lewis Kiser July 12, 1885. To this union were born two sons, Ray and George.

When death claimed husband and father and she was left to fight life's battles alone with her two little boys. After a lonely life of nine years she was married to Lewis Neese, Nov. 10, 1894. To this union were born four sons, two of whom died in infancy. Fourteen years ago Lewis and Mollie walked side by side enjoying the blessings and helping each other to bear the burdens of life but oh how short these years do seem when death entered their pleasant home Nov. 10, 1908 and claimed her as its own and took her to the heavenly home to suffer pain and death no more. She leaves to mourn for her husband, four sons, 3 step-daughters and five step-sons, two brothers, John and Peter Smith, besides a host of relatives and numerous friends. For the consolation of friends we wish to say that "Linda" as she was called professed a hope in Christ in early life and has not only professed, but her life was such that her children and friends need not be afraid to pattern by it.

Funeral preached at late residence by Rev. William Evans to large crowd of people. Interment at Frederick Cemetery.

A Turn In the Tables

(Copyright, 1906, by American Press Association.)

My dear, what I have to tell you I would only confide to my bosom friend. A terrible blunder for which I alone am responsible has made a great change in my life. I can never think of it without horror, shame, mortification, humiliation—indeed, every frightful emotion for which there is a word in the English language. And yet I confess that this incident has brought me the most exquisite happiness. I have to announce to you, my dearest, sweetest, loveliest friend, my engagement. Bob has won my consent at last.

But I must admit that Bob took an unfair advantage of me. While I love him and feel that he is the one man to make me happy, I can never forget that he turned to his own account this frightful fatality to compel me to accept him. True, I had all along intended to do so. But you know how sweet it is for a woman to have a man humble himself before her, tell her that without her he will become a wreck, implore her to have mercy upon him. All this I might have had were it not for my mistake.

I had kept Bob dangling for a year. I had given him but little hope. I confess that his pain was my pleasure. When he fretted I laughed at him, when he rebelled I assumed a haughty tone and asked by what authority he presumed to dictate to me, and never after the slightest sign of independence on his part did I restore him to favor except he came to me through the valley of humiliation.

Now, when I consider that he not only compelled me to desist from such treatment, but assumed to make conditions; when I think that he got me, so to speak, in a hole, acted in a mean, contemptible, selfish, disgusting, brutal—

But I am forgetting that I am engaged to him and love him devotedly. It is dangerous for me to give you this story, for in the telling of it I am liable to wish that I had my lover on a spit roasting him before a slow fire. However, since I must tell somebody and you are my own true, loyal friend, I will hurry through it lest my indignation get the better of me and I send Bob about his business.

You must know that Bob and Alice and Sue and Lillie and a lot of boys and girls were together on the coast. Well, we came home in the same train, making the journey in the night. Alice and I occupied a lower berth, while Sue and Lillie did the same. The boys bunked together, except Bob, who took a berth for himself alone. We were a merry party on the train, talking and laughing, till a disagreeable old man—why are old people permitted to live, I wonder?—called out from his berth that the fool killer was coming through the train. Thinking that this might possibly be a hint for us to get into our berths, we did so, and the car soon wore the silence of slumber. Of course the silence of slumber is different in a sleeping car from a nursery. A number of people snored frightfully.

In the middle of the night I awoke with a terrible thirst. I was in my wrapper and had my slippers on. I crawled over Alice, who slept on the outside, went to the end of the car to the cooler, got a drink and started back.

Now, these sleeping cars, when one wishes to find one's berth, are perfectly awful. I was lost. I looked for the porter, but he was not visible. I peeped into several berths, in each case seeing a stranger asleep. Then it occurred to me that my berth was the fourth from the rear end of the car. Acting on this, I made a plunge. A figure rolled in the bedclothes was on the outside. I climbed over it and had one hand and knee on one side of it, the other hand and knee on the other side, when the sleeper stretched forth a hand, pulled the curtain aside, and the horrid lamplight shone down on the face of—

How shall I ever get the story told? What was I doing? What frightful fate had possession of me? There beneath me lay a man—not only a man, but the man whom I had been persecuting. I was getting into bed with—oh, horrors!—with Bob. He was looking up into my eyes, I down into his.

"Mercy!" I cried, and rolling out into the aisle, rushed back to the other end of the car. There I found the porter coming in at the door, and he put me in my berth.

Of course I didn't sleep a wink. How could I? The next morning Bob made no reference to the matter by look or word till we were all at breakfast in the dining car. Then he said:

"Anybody sick in the night?" I knew what was coming, flushed crimson and gave him an imploring look. But he kept on making all kinds of innuendoes without telling on me till I was almost frantic.

Well, when we went back into our car we found the berths put away, and Bob took a seat beside me. Assuming an independent tone, he said that I had one more chance, and one only, to be his wife. I must decide then and there. If I refused to give him a definite answer the story must come out.

What could I do? We are to be married in April, and I wish you, of course, to be first bridesmaid. I have not yet decided whether the wedding shall be at the church or the house. Bob came in yesterday while I was planning my trousseau and seemed surprised at my entering on the work so soon. "But," he said, "it is certainly time for a girl who is in the middle of the night!"

You should have seen the look I gave him.

LEITA DENNING.

BEETHOVEN.

The Composer's Own Story of How He Became Deaf.
Charles Neefe, on a visit to Vienna, was either commissioned by certain English authorities to induce Beethoven to visit England or was persuading him to do so on his own account, and as an allurement he spoke of the superiority of the English aurists in their treatment of ear disease and held out hopes that were Beethoven to consult them he might at least find some sort of relief. Beethoven shook his head. "No," he said, "I have consulted all kinds of doctors and followed their prescriptions. I shall never be cured. I will tell you how the thing happened. I was writing an opera. I had to deal with a very tiresome and capricious tenor. I had already written two great arias to the same words, neither of which pleased him, and also a third, which he did not care for the first time he tried it, although he took it away with him. I was thanking heaven I had done with him and had begun to settle myself to something else which I had laid aside. I had hardly worked at it half an hour before I heard a knock at the door, which I recognized as that of my tenor. "I sprang up from my table in such a rage that as the man came into the room I flung myself upon the floor, as they do on the stage" (here he threw up his arms and gesticulated in illustration), "but I fell upon my hands. When I got up I found I was deaf, and from that moment I have remained so. The doctor said I injured the nerve."—Diehl's "Life of Beethoven."

GRAFT IN RUSSIA.

Removing the Difficulties in an Army Officer's Transfer.
A young Russian officer wished to be transferred to another regiment and took his request in person to one of the lights of the Russian general staff. That powerful officer shook his head and declared the matter very difficult to arrange—almost impossible. Then his glance fell suddenly upon the shoes of the lieutenant. To the amazement of his visitor, the senior officer said that the lieutenant's shoes were not nearly good enough for an officer and that he would strongly advise him to buy new shoes of a shoemaker whose address he gave. Then, telling his visitor to return in eight days, he dismissed him. The latter was clever enough to realize that he could not return without the new shoes, so he hurried to the shoemaker. On hearing who had sent him the shoemaker said that the lieutenant could have the shoes in five days for the sum of $250. Much astonished, the officer went to a comrade for advice. He was told to pay half of this sum at once and the rest when his shoes were finished. This the officer did, and, wearing his new boots, he duly kept his appointment with the general staff officer and learned to his joy that all the "grave difficulties" in the way of his transfer had been successfully removed.

His Hobby.

One man with an odd hobby isn't a person who gets much mail, and what he has or expects to have he can keep in mind very easily. Probably he never had a letter which went astray. Yet every time he sees in the newspapers the list of advertised mail sent out from time to time by the general postoffice in New York he turns at once to the initial letter under which his name comes and runs carefully through the list. He never yet has found any letter that might be supposed to be for him and, furthermore, hasn't found any that might be for any of his relatives. He takes an odd pleasure in doing it, however, something with that eagerness which impels a man to grub through a packet of old letters in hopes that he may come upon some rare variety of stamp. Really, if ever he found his name in the list it probably would kill his enjoyment of the hunt forever thereafter.—New York Sun.

Anticipated Cause For Sorrow.

Ina came in from the country on her fifth birthday to visit her cousin May. At night they were put to bed early. An hour passed, when heart-breaking sobs were heard from the children's bedroom. "What is the matter, children?" asked May's mother, entering the dark room. "From under the bedclothes Ina sobbed out, 'May won't give me any of her peanuts.' " "But May has no peanuts," replied her aunt. "I know that," sobbed Ina, "but she said if she did have peanuts she wouldn't give me any."—Delineator.

Sufficiently Occupied.

A story is told of a colonel in General Lee's division in the late civil war who sometimes indulged in more apple-jack than was good for him. Passing him one evening leaning against a tree, the general said: "Good evening, colonel. Come over to my tent for a moment, please." "S-s-cuse me, g-g-ent'l, s-s-cuse me," replied the colonel. "It's 'bout all I can do to stay where I am."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Right Foot Foremost.

Putting the right foot foremost was an old Roman ordination originally regulating the entry of persons into a house or other building and based upon the supposition that the left was unlucky. A boy was kept at the door to see that no one entered the house "left foot first." The phrase quoted is thus seen to be very antique.

It is the wise head that makes the still tongue.—Lucas.

DEPAUW NEWS

LINE-UP IS NOW IN DOUBT WALKS ARE CLASS GIFTS

HARMON AND WHITEHAIR MAY BE OUT OF THE WABASH GAME.

SHIFT PROBABLY NECESSARY

Just what the DePauw lineup for the Wabash game next Friday will be is a matter of doubt because of the physical condition of the varsity regulars. Both tackles were absent from yesterday's practice. Harmon is still suffering with a bad case of tonsillitis, being confined indoors and little improved since the first of the week. It is not thought probable that he will be able to play Friday, it being the first game missed by the left tackle this year. Whitehair who has been playing the right tackle position during the last part of the season, was kept out of the workout yesterday upon the advice of the physician. If the lagrippe, which Whitehair is now fighting is sufficiently shaken off by Friday the right part of the line will be remedied but it is probable that considerable will even then be needed in the lineup. It is thought that LeVan and Stansell will hold down the tackle jobs against the little giants in case the regulars are still on the hospital list by Friday. Both LeVan and Stansell have been in most of the games this season and will not be green material. In case LeVan shifts from the back field Grady will probably take his stand at left half with Overman at quarter. Denison was away from practice yesterday on account of a fever, Jackson taking his place at full. Denison will probably be in condition by Friday as he received no injury in the Earlham game. The game at Richmond was hard on all members of the team and the regulars are in a decidedly weak condition to play one of the hardest games of the year by Friday.

Coach Brown kept the squad out till dark last night at hard work on McKean field and is putting night practice in the gym on the daily program.

The workout yesterday consisted as last week of running back punts by the individual members of the squad and in defense against punting and field goal work. A long signal practice wound up the work of the afternoon.

JUNIOR DEBATE IS HELD

TRY-OUT CONTEST WAS HELD IN MEHARRY HALL LAST NIGHT.

SOPHOMORE CONTEST TO-NIGHT

The junior class debate was held last night in Meharry Hall and the following men were awarded places on the team: Guy Elwell, first, Roy Love, second, and Paul Riddick, third. The question for the contest was, "Resolved, That the United States should adopt a system of compulsory arbitration similar to that of New Zealand."

The contest was strongly competitive and the three men who were given places on the team will have an opportunity of trying out for the college debate teams. Three men will be chosen from the sophomore class in a debate which is to be held this evening and the freshman try-out will be held on next Monday night. The twelve debaters thus chosen will begin preparation for the collegiate debate in which the Albion team will be selected.

The judges in last night's contest were ex-Senator T. T. Moore, Rev. Walker and Ray S. Fellows, all of whom are alumni of the university.

DePAUW GRADUATES HAVE TAKEN THIS MEANS OF REPAYING ALMA MATER.

PLANS FOR MORE ON FOOT

After a class leaves college it shows its spirit by attempting to make reparation to its Alma Mater for sins committed while it was in her care. The reparation often takes the form of gifts.

The cement walks are examples of this form of class spirit. Back in 1896 agitation was started looking toward cement walks for the campus. The class of 1897 interested themselves in the matter and as a result the first stone walk was laid. The classes of 1902, 1903 and 1904 took up the work of the older classes, and by the combined contribution the University was able to put in the walks just north of East College.

The class of 1882 with which Dr. Stephenson was graduated felt that they had never fully repayed their college for the trouble they had caused her, so they took up the walk agitation. When that class gets interested in doing a thing something generally happens. In this instance the walk running from East to Middle College and the one running from East College north to Spring Street were provided. The first walk that was built did not suit the class so they had it torn up and a good one put in its place.

The class of 1875 also got busy in the matter. They paid for the walk which runs from East College towards College Avenue and the Academy building.

The gifts have not all come through classes. The Honorable William D. Parr of the class of 1875 was a very large contributor to the cement walk fund.

But the age of cement walk building is not yet past. For the years 1906 and 1907 and 1908 the University expended some thing like $3,000 for walks. But they have planned still other improvements in this line. In the near future a walk will be laid from East College to the Northeast corner of the campus. Another running southeast and ending on Locust Street just across from Woman's Hall will also be constructed.

TO AMEND CONSTITUTION

PEACE ORATORICAL PRIMARY MAY BE HELD DURING THE WINTER TERM.

BEGIN TO ARRANGE FOR IT

At the meeting of the Peace Association held last evening in Plato Hall a committee was appointed to revise the constitution of the local organization. The committee was advised to change the time of the peace oratorical contest, which is annually held under the direction of the university association, from the third term to some time during the winter term.

President Calrence E. Flynn announced that the prize of twenty-five dollars given by Andrew Carnegie would again be given this year to the winner of the local contest. It was further decided at the meeting last evening that all contestants must hand in their names to Secretary Arthur Adams before the close of the present term.

VESEY TO GO

DePauw Will Have Three Men in State Meet.

Coach Brown has selected Richard Vesey to accompany Myers and Summerville to the Notre Dame cross-country run Saturday.

The men have been practicing and training faithfully since the try-out and should be able to capture at least one of the point winning positions.

THE DATE IS ANNOUNCED

PROHIBITION ORATORICAL AND PRIMARY WILL BE HELD JANUARY 26.

EIGHT ALREADY IN THE FIELD

At a recent meeting of the Prohibition League, Friday, January 26, was fixed as the date for the primary Prohibition Oratorical contest. The contest is open to all students of the university and the winner of the primary will represent DePauw in the state intercollegiate contest to be held at Earlham sometime next spring. The Beckett Prize of twenty-five dollars for the winner of first place in the primary contest has been renewed for this year, while the winner of the state contest will receive a prize of fifty dollars as last year. President J. Raymond Schmidt of the local Prohibition League announces that eight contestants have already entered the university contest.

IS WORKING HARD

Wabash Coach Planning to Administer Crushing Defeat.

Wabash is putting forward all possible effort to deal us a humiliating defeat next Friday. Their Coach is running the team through signal and formation drill, and does not intend to give any scrimmage work which might injure any of the team.

Wabash has put up a wonderful defense this season and they are confident that we can not score on them. They have had only three touchdowns scored against them this season. Michigan Aggies, Rose Poly and Miami each scored one touchdown. Of these three the Rose Poly was accidental as they secured the ball on a blocked punt.

ASSOCIATION MEETS

Orators Must Have Names in Not Later Than November 24.

At a meeting of the executive board of the Oratorical Association it was decided that all men who intend entering the oratorical contest must hand in their names to Professor Gough not later than Tuesday, November 24. This request is made for two reasons. Professor Gough must have the eligibility of the contestants passed upon by the Dean. The judges both on delivery and manuscript must be chosen by December 8, so the orators must have a meeting at an early date to make their selection.

BLOOMINGTON IS GONE DRY

Today Exhausts the Water Supply of That City, and the Water Works Will Close Down Until Copious Rains Renew the Supply.

The Bloomington Telephone of Tuesday says:

By tomorrow evening the water will be exhausted and the water plant closed down until heavy rains fill the lakes, and the people of the city will scramble for water as best they can. Supt. Helfrich is going to run the plant until the water is entirely drained before he closes down. At this time of the year it is not thought that a drought can last long so no one is worried to any great extent. Cisterns all over town have been filled and besides there are springs and wells in different parts of the city that give a big supply of water.

The fire cisterns have all been repaired and filled with water so the danger from fire is not as great as it might be. The city still has the steam engine which was used before the water works were built and this will be used if a fire does occur. Meantime the weather report is "Fair and not much change in temperature."

TEST LOCAL OPTION LAW

One Joseph Cline Has Inaugurated Proceedings to Break Down the New County Temperance Legislation.

Joseph Cline is making application for liquor license and it is stated that it is the intention to test the new local option law by an appeal to the Supreme Court, if necessary, says the Bloomington Telephone.

The application is made for the Troutman & Demos room, for the December Term of Commissioners' Court, but it is expected that the commissioners will refuse, as there is now a remonstrance on file that does not expire until a year hence. However, the plan is to test the new law and an appeal is to be made, it is said, to the Circuit Court and then to the Supreme Court.

It is claimed that the new local option law repeals the present remonstrance law, and the court of one Circuit in the north part of the State has already held to that effect—that is that both the remonstrance and the local option laws can not stand. So in case the Supreme Court holds this same way, the Cline application would be ready to go into effect.

In the meantime the legislature is to be in session, and there is little or no doubt but that the effort is to be made to repeal the new local option law.

BEWARE OF DIPHTHERIA

This Dangerous and Often Fatal Disease is Unusually Prevalent in Indiana, and It Behooves the People To be Careful of Exposure.

DANGER EVEN IN MILD CASES

Word comes from Staunton, Clay County, by Dr. Veach, Health Officer, of a serious epidemic of diphtheria at that place. He says that there have been about sixty cases there in the last month, but many of them were so light that no physician was called. Some of the children who had slight attacks went to school, spreading the disease. In one family there are seven children, six of whom are now down with the fever. It was not until there was a death from diphtheria that the full extent of the epidemic became known. Dr. Veach says that the whole town of 1,200 inhabitants has been exposed, and the schools have been closed. County health officer Williams today wired the state health department, asking that antitoxin be sent for the treatment of the poor in Staunton.

In connection with this epidemic of the dread disease, so near to us, comes word from Dr. Hurty, Secretary of the State Board of Health. He says:

Diphtheria broke out in many places in the state in October. The disease caused 41 deaths and over 1,600 cases. This unnecessary sickness and death caused immense anxiety, suffering, sorrow and money loss. Eternal vigilance is the price of freedom from infectious diseases. In time of peace prepare for war. At this time, too, even slight colds be looked upon with suspicion for sometimes what is supposed to be a cold is an attack of mild diphtheria. Mild cases are more to be feared for spreading the disease than severe cases. People keep away from severe cases, but blindly run into and against the mild ones.

GOOD HORSEMANSHIP.

An Old Hunter's Illustration of the Gift of "Hands."

Your heart and your head keep up. Your hands and your knees keep down. Your knees keep close to your horse's sides. And your elbows to your own.

This old bit of advice for the would be horseman is quoted by a writer in Bally's Magazine and declared to be perennially sound.

He quotes another old hunter on the subject of what he calls "the divine gift of hands" in riding. This old hunter, John Darby, used to attach two pieces of twine to the back of an ordinary chair and draw the same tighter until the chair balanced on its fore or hind legs, according to his own position.

Then when balanced he would keep it, so to speak, on the swing by gently manipulating the twine or reins he held in his hand. A rough pull would, of course, have upset the chair one way, whereas the fact of not checking it in its movements at all would have caused a total loss of control over it in the opposite direction.

"And that," when the exhibition was concluded he would add, "is hands, gentlemen."

Jogging to the covert, continues the writer, you may notice one fine horse, the owner fully equipped, throwing its head up and down like a pump handle, another sweating profusely, although the pace has not exceeded five miles an hour since it left the stable, and a third snorting and prancing about all over the place.

Why is this so? Simply because the rider of neither of them is possessed with the divine gift of "hands."

THE BEE'S STING.

An Ugly Weapon Something Like a Three Bladed Sword.

The bee's sting is made up of three separate lances, each with a barbed edge and each capable of being thrust forward independently of the others. The central and broader lance has a hollow face furnished at each side with a rail or beading, which runs its whole length. On the back of each of the other two lances there is a longitudinal groove, and into these grooves fit the raised beadings of the central lance.

Thus the sting is like a sword with three blades—united, but sliding upon one another—the barbed points of which continue to advance alternately into the wound, going ever deeper and deeper of their own malice aforethought after the initial thrust is made. It is a device of war compared to which the explosive bullet is but a clumsy brutality. Yet this is not all.

To make its death dealing powers doubly sure this thorough minded amazon must fill the haft of her triple blade with a subtle poison and so contrive its sliding mechanism that the same impulse which drives the points successively forward drenches the whole weapon with a fatal juice.—From "The Lore of the Honey Bee," by Tickner Edwards.

A STRANGE CASE OF RAISING THE DEAD.

There is a vacant lot 100 feet front by 200 feet deep in the upper part of New York about which nearly a century ago residences were springing up. One day in 18— it was announced that this lot had been bought by a man who intended to use it for a livery stable. The proximity of such property being undesirable, residents of the neighborhood clubbed together and bought the property. Two gentlemen invested $1,000 each, forming a trust, every investor having the right to nominate a person to inherit his interest. The property was to be kept intact till but one of these nominees remained alive. This person was to then become its owner. The nominees were all under one year of age and selected from families remarkable for longevity.

When ninety years had passed but two nominees were living, Gustavus Clough Wyatt and Lydia Ward Selby. Mr. Wyatt was ninety-one years of age, Mrs. Selby ninety-two and a half. Both were in fairly good health considering their advanced age. Mr. Wyatt had willed the property in case he should live to secure it to his son, Walter Lambert, aged sixty-five. Miss Selby's interest was to go to her granddaughter, Florence Dudley, aged fourteen.

Six years later both Mr. Wyatt and Mrs. Selby had experienced a great change. In each there remained but the flicker of the last drops of life's burning oil. The property which one or the other would own was worth $1,000,000. Lambert, who would inherit if his father should be the survivor, was an old curmudgeon whom everybody hated. Florence Dudley was a lovely girl with no means whatever and engaged to Travers Trask, a young medical man who proposed to make surgery his specialty.

Since the inheritance of a million was dependent upon the lives of these two aged people they were kept like plants in a conservatory. The slightest draft of air coming near either one of them was considered of more importance than a cyclone elsewhere. Both lived on toast water, and neither was permitted to go out of doors. Mr. Wyatt was under the constant care of Dr. Myrtlewood, a young man whose whole time was engaged for the purpose by Lambert. Mrs. Selby was under the care of Dr. Trask, who visited her every day.

The autumn of 19— was balmy up to the 13th of November, when a blizzard came down that carried off most of those whose lives hung in the balance. Old Mr. Wyatt and old Mrs. Selby both lay dying. Mr. Lambert had spies in the Selby home, and Dr. Trask, who had his fiancée's interests in charge, managed to keep himself fairly posted as to the condition of old Wyatt. Each principal was approaching the end of the race, and it seemed probable that the winner might survive by only a few hours. Dr. Myrtlewood was keeping old Wyatt up by stimulants, and Dr. Trask was doing the same by Mrs. Selby. Sympathy was entirely with Miss Dudley, every one hoping that she would inherit.

At 9 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 14, while the storm was still raging Dr. Trask saw that his patient was sinking. Word came that Mr. Wyatt could live but a few hours. An hour after this Mrs. Selby, despite the effect of the most powerful stimulants passed away. Lambert was still alive. Within ten minutes after Mrs. Selby's death the fact was reported to Dr. Myrtlewood, who gave over attempting to longer keep his patient alive, and he died half an hour later.

Dr. Trask may be said to be on the scouting line of his profession. While a student he had witnessed an experiment which has startled the world. He resolved to repeat it. Turning every one out of the room where Mrs. Selby had died except his intimate friend, Dr. Semester, a graduate of a prominent German school of medicine, whom he retained for an assistant, he made an incision over the woman's heart. He then inserted his hand and clasped the organ, squeezing it gently and massaging it. This process he kept up for some fifteen minutes, when a faint glint of color appeared in the patient's cheeks. Dr. Semester placed a mirror under the woman's nostrils and a slight moisture appeared on the glass. The massaging continued some ten minutes longer, when the patient opened her eyes.

Hastily covering the body to the chin Dr. Trask summoned every one in the house and said to them:

"I wish you to witness that on this 14th day of November at 3:45 p. m. Mrs. Selby lives."

At that moment the patient sighed and said in a feeble voice, "I feel so queer."

"Do you hear that?" said the doctor. "She not only lives, but speaks. Leave the room. Everything depends upon keeping her composed."

No one knew what was passing in the sickroom till 6 o'clock, when the two physicians emerged and announced that Mrs. Selby was dead.

There was a lawsuit over the inheritance of the property in question, but it was proved on the trial that Mrs. Selby survived Mr. Wyatt by several hours, so at his death she was the owner of the vacant lot. This made good her will leaving the property to her great-granddaughter, to whom it was turned over by due process of law.

Dr. and Mrs. Trask are about to be married, but are putting off the wedding till after the 15th of November. As to the hour of the demise scientific men have not yet given a decision.

LOUISE B. CUMMINGS.
